A fresh lot of them received just in time to nip a number of incipient coughs in the bud. Our Horehound Candy is the kind that has the real horehound in it—the kind grandmother used to make. Tastes far better than artificially flavored horehound candy and does something the common kinds cannot do—stops coughs. Excellent for hoarseness, rawness of the throat and other conditions resulting from the cooler weather. Any amount from a nickel's worth up.

Roll Call—William Duthie.

On Oct. 24, ex-Sec. William Duthie, of Barre, died of Bright's disease. His name had not been so actively identified with details of branch work of recent years as a decade ago. He was one of the early, hard workers in that branch to get it established on a sound basis, and by that means to remove the mists and the doubts which surrounded the possibility of conducting a branch of a trade association, albeit the harsh conspiracy laws of the Green Mountain state. He had able co-workers, but it is of him we write. It required nerve as well as caution in those days, to make progressive history, and when in 1897, William Duthie struggling hard for a large membership of good-standing members evolved the historic motion, "Resolved, That we refuse to do business with those who refuse to do business with us," manufacturer, lawyer and business men alike, stood awestruck, with mouth agape, at the audacity of the motion, carrying as it did, an idea of economic construction which had not before appeared to them possible in their environment. The virus caught the public pulse in the granite city which was being built on a theretofore almost barren plain, and unionism and development of the cut granite industry went forth with leaps and bounds. Such instances as the notorious large ride from South Ryegate to St. Johnsbury, carrying men to prison simply because they were union men, were forgotten excepting as an historic event, and the insurance in a short time became the everyday union man in the Vermont granite belt. Of strong convictions, excellent mechanical ability, somewhat of a judge of human nature, William Duthie also had the spirit of the scientific in music in him, and had he developed his talents as a writer of music as he did his ability at "finishing" as a granite cutter, he would have made his mark in the musical world. He has passed on, but in his day and time he performed more than one man's share of the hard work to bring trade unionism through and out of the slough of despond in Vermont.—Granite Cutters' Journal.

TRULY A GEM.

How the Trow & Holden Catalogue Appeals to Granite Cutters' Journal.

The Trow & Holden (Barre, Vt.) handbook, containing a catalog of hand and machine tools for cutting and handling granite, is truly a gem. In addition to carefully proportioned cuts of quarrying, handling and cutting tools, the book contains etchings of a few first-class monuments. The shading of the different tools is neat and one cannot help admire the genius used to perfect the seventy-five interesting pages composing the book. The outside covers represent dark Barre polished, the title of the book is in raised, round letters, while the inside cover and the first and last pages represent Barre stock flume-finished. There are several panels in the book representing polished Barre granite, and the publication is not only creditable because of its artistic merits but for its valuable information to all parties interested in the tools of the granite industry. In fact the firm has combined artistic effect with a useful book. This firm's advertisement appears regularly in our Journal, and our readers should encourage the use of tools of the firms which patronize the columns of our Journal with their business cards.—Granite Cutters' Journal.
